PART 3

TOWARD A CHRISTLIKE MARRIAGE – KNOWLEDGE, CARE, AND COVENANT LOVE

To love a woman well, a man must be willing to understand her. To understand her, he must be willing to learn her. And to learn her, he must embrace humility—the kind of humility Christ Himself demonstrated.

Modern culture often tells men to center themselves: protect your peace, prioritize your needs, discover your truth. But Scripture invites men into a higher calling—a sacrificial kind of love. A love that gives more than it takes, listens more than it speaks, and understands more than it assumes.

“Husbands, love your wives, even as Christ also loved the church, and gave himself for it.” — Ephesians 5:25 (KJV)

This is not cheap love. It is costly love. It is intentional love. It is informed love.

A man cannot give himself for his wife if he knows nothing about her. He cannot reflect Christ in marriage while walking in ignorance. The calling is not simply to be a spiritual leader—though that is vital. The calling is also to be an emotional, practical, thoughtful leader.

This means learning about:

- communication
- fertility and timing
- emotional cues
- hormonal influences
- stress responses
- her unique personality
- her love languages
- her vulnerabilities

Ignorance has caused more marital friction than spiritual attack ever has. Many couples have prayed fervently for what knowledge would have solved in a week. Not because prayer is ineffective, but because prayer works best alongside wisdom.

Ravi Zacharias once said:

“Love is the greatest apologetic — it opens the heart to truth.”

A husband who loves with wisdom becomes a living testimony of the Gospel—reflecting Christ’s tenderness, Christ’s insight, and Christ’s sacrificial posture toward His bride.

Marriage is a covenant of love, not a contract of convenience. And to love her well—to truly love her well—a man must commit himself to learning her. Not once, not occasionally, but continually.

This series is not about pressure. It is about preparation. It is not about fear. It is about readiness.

To every Christian man reading: Prepare now. Learn now. Grow now. For the woman God is bringing into your life deserves a man who leads with wisdom, loves with understanding, and reflects Christ in both knowledge and tenderness.

To love her well — you must know her well.
